Lesson 2.03

Read through the Briefing tab here to understand your goals and objectives in this lesson. Then select the Assignment tab or the next arrow.

Your goals are to learn how to complete the following objectives:

- Understand the practical application of relative location
- Use modern technology to obtain relative directions
- Communicate relative directions for personal use

Finding relative location is an important geographic skill. On this assignment, you will gain some practical experience that will help make your life easier as you find your way in the world.

Lesson 2.03 Getting T

You will be following an Itinerary, or a plan for a journey. You will be traveling around New York. Read through the lesson and then open and save the work file.

A cub reporter is often paired with a seasoned veteran. You have just learned that you will be accompanying a seasoned reporter on a human interest story about a group of students attending an important function at the United Nations Headquarters in New York City. Take a few minutes to view a copy of the group's itinerary.

Your job is to create a written list of driving directions to get you and your partner to each location. There are two ways of finding a location. One is to use absolute location. However, finding latitude and longitude coordinates is not going to help you on this assignment. You need to find relative location. That means you need to be able to find each location quickly in relation to other known locations. Street addresses are a form of relative location, as are landmarks such as important buildings.

Since your partner wants to get an early start in the morning, you are going to arrive the night before. That means you need to begin at your hotel and then find the directions to the first stop on the itinerary, then from the first stop to the second stop, and so on. Be sure to write simple and easy-to-read directions. You need to be able to understand them quickly and under the pressure of getting from one place to another in a hurry.

There are different ways you can find out where each address on the itinerary is located. You could get a map of the city and plot each location. However, there are other tools that can give you relative directions quickly and easily. Use the link below and follow the instructions to find driving directions from one location to another. Notice that you can use the "print" button to provide easy-to-copy directions. Use the link below and follow the instructions to find driving directions from one location to another. Notice that you can use the "print" button to provide easy-to-copy directions. Use the link below and follow the instructions to find driving directions from one location to another. Notice that you can use the "print" button to provide easy-to-copy directions.

You will be using the Itinerary to fill in the work file, then going to mapquest to find directions to each of these places.

Itinerary of Visit to New York City9:00 a.m.

Get to know the Big Apple on an orientation tour through the city. You're on your way to your first stop at the United Nations Headquarters located at 760 United Nations Plaza, New York, NY 10017. Here you will participate in a model U.N. session.

12:00 p.m.

After having a quick lunch, feast your eyes on the artistic treasures at the Metropolitan Museum of Art located at 1000 5th Avenue, New York, NY 10001.

4:00 p.m.

Next stop is the Empire State Building located at 350 5th Avenue, New York, NY 10118-0110. Gaze down at the city that never sleeps from high atop one of the tallest buildings in the world, an enduring symbol of New York.

6:00 p.m.

Before experiencing the excitement of live theater, enjoy an elegant dinner at the Restaurant Charlotte in the Millennium Broadway Hotel located at 145 West 44th Street, New York, NY 10036-4012.

Accommodations are provided at The New Yorker Hotel, 481 8th Avenue, New York, NY 10001

This is the Itinerary. You will be starting at the New Yorker Hotel and then traveling to the United Nations Headquarters. After that you will be going to the Metropolitan Museum of Natural Art, then to the Empire State Building and then end up at the Restaurant Charlotte. Once you see where you are going, click the back arrow.

This is the work file. We need to fill in each of these addresses and then find directions!
